Telecommuting, Pandemic Plans, and Business Continuity

Jonathan Nguyen-Duy - Group Manager-Business Continuity Services, Verizon Business

This will be a discussion on Telecommuting, Business Continuity/Continuity of Operations trends and Pandemic Influenza developments and implications for businesses, state and local agencies, and educational institutions. The discussion will feature insights on new challenges and practical mitigation strategies from Jonathan Nguyen-Duy of Verizon Business, who leads the development of BCDR/COOP solutions. You will also hear about Verizon Business preparations for a wide range of possible incidents.

Jonathan Nguyen-Duy leads product management of Business Continuity solutions at Verizon Communications, a premier provider of advanced global communications and IT solutions. He specializes in helping enterprises and government agencies meet a wide range of risk management, pandemic flu planning and security challenges.

Jonathan has over 15 years of BCDR/COOP experience managing information security and telecommunications services in more than 50 countries worldwide – working through business interruptions, including armed conflict, civil strife, natural disasters, terrorist attacks, power outages, disease outbreaks and a wide range of cyber threats.

We can follow this presentation with discussion of the latest Commonwealth of Virginia initiatives and goals related to COOP, Telework, Pandemic Plans, and Commonwealth Preparedness.

The Business Recovery Association of Virginia is an independent professional association of those involved in Business Continuity/Recovery and Contingency Planning. Membership is open. There are no membership dues or meeting fees.
